Pennsylvania Wins the 'Varsity and Cornell the Freshmen Race.

SARATOGA LAKE, N. Y., July 2.—Pennsylvania won the 'varsity race by about four and a half lengths. There was a glorious sprint down the stretch between Cornell and Wisconsin, the latter being slightly ahead entering the last quarter-mile. The Cornell crew put life into their work and pulled nobly ahead, crossing second by two thirds of a length. Columbia was fourth by approximately four lengths and a half.

Official time: Pennsylvania, 15:51 1-5; Cornell, 16:01; Wisconsin, 16:07; Columbia, 16:21.

SARATOGA LAKE, N. Y., July 2.—9:30 A. M.—Cornell freshmen won over Columbia and Pennsylvania today. A beautiful 32-stroke work from the start. Their lead over the line was about two and a half lengths.

Coming into the last half mile the Columbias, who were many lengths to the rear of Pennsylvania, made a fine spurt, and at the same time the lite seemed to die out of the Quakers. Slowly the New Yorkers crept up while the crowd on the grand stand yelled itself hoarse and the Columbia shell just poked its nose ahead of the Pennsylvania boat in the last ten yards and across the line.

The time was: Cornell, 10:51 3-5; Columbia, 11:12; Pennsylvania, 11:15.

Union Pacific Officials in a Wreck.

REDDING, Cal., July 2.—A special train carrying a number of officials of the Union Pacific railroad has been wrecked between Smithson and Delta about thirty-five miles north of Redding. Although receiving a severe shaking up none of the officials were injured. The engineer and fireman were both hurt but not seriously. The engine jumped the track in a cut but the coaches held to the rails.

EMILIO CASTELAR, THE UNCROWNED KING.

Mr. Castelar, when I first met him last year, regarded the war between the United States and Spain as an absurdity, a monstrosity. The very idea he resented as unworthy the serious thought of educated people. He deplored at that time the gross deceit that was being cultivated by a certain section of the Spanish press, but a most one that the great bulk of the educated people wanted peace, and home rule for Cuba.

Castelar's drawing room is, if possible, more richly furnished than the one into which I was at first ushered. Here are precious paintings by old masters, vases, bits of armor, carvings, tapestries from the far East, as well as Europe; not a single thing that does not indicate selection by a connoisseur with ample means to gratify his tastes. Of course his study was the most interesting room in the house to me, and he took me in to see the pile of manuscript with which he is at present occupied. The walls of his work room are lined with books from floor to ceiling, not the books of a mere collector, but the working library of a political student. The great and crowning work of Mr. Castelar's life promises to be the universal history on which he is at present occupied, and which bids fair to fill many volumes and an indefinite number of years.

Mr. Castelar is a bachelor. He does not smoke or gamble, or indulge in those many so-called recreations which ultimately disturb the balance necessary to the exercise of sound judgment. He has, therefore, a beautiful harmony of faculties, which manifests itself in his oratory, his splendid mastery of composition, his choice of ornaments, and, most strikingly of all, in his preparation of a dinner.

When he asked me to dine with him, he most kindly asked after my tastes in matters culinary, to which I answered that, as a stranger in Spain, the most interesting food to me would naturally be that which had a peculiarly national character. And what a dinner that was, to be sure! There were two cabinet ministers present and half a dozen other friends connected with public life. My host no doubt wished me to see that people of all parties could unite at his board, and that an American even then was well received if he came on an errand of peace.

It was hard to talk politics at such a meal. Every dish was strange and delicious, every wine was of the choicest, and selected with especial reference to the food that was to form its companion piece. Our learned host could give historical and botanical footnote to every dish. I have known but one such master of epicure in my life—the late Charles A. Dana, who was at the same time, like Mr. Castelar, an artist in a large variety of directions.

When I again saw Mr. Castelar after an interval of twelve months, the political horizon had blackened considerably. The kindly statesman welcomed me as cordially as ever, and reasserted his horror of war, and belief in a more Christian solution of the difficulties. At the same time he was less of an optimist than when I had seen him last, and was particularly bitter at the unscrupulous correspondent of American papers who had pretended to interview him, and had sent word into his mouth which were [illegible] and wholly at variance with his views. He now had no relations with any members of the American legation, in spite of the high regard he was prepared to entertain personally for General Woodford. He had been in the past so frequently betrayed by men who pretended to be his friends that now he preferred to wait in silence until he could see clearly ahead either peace or war. A great change had come over Mr. Castelar, which his intimates attributed to ill health, and also largely to the illness sent to the United States, which deeply [illegible] determined to proverbial cable [illegible] for the great republic.

I subsequently asked Mr. Woodford about his relations with Mr. Castelar, and got practically a confirmation of what I had already heard, that the [illegible] goes had in both countries done so much mischief that social intercourse between his excellency, an American, and General Woodford and so eminent a Spanish sympathizer as Mr. Castelar had this year 1898 become impossible.—[Poultney Bigelow in Harper's Weekly.

LOSSES HEAVY.

Killed and Wounded Estimated to Exceed 1,000.

Shells, Probably from the Fleet, Did Great Damage.

(Copyright, 1898, by the Associated Press.)

SIBONEY, Province of Santiago de Cuba, July 1, 8 P. M., via Playa del Este (Delayed in transmission).—At this hour the fighting still continues. The entire reserve of the American army have been ordered to the front at once, apparently with the intention of forcing our way into Santiago. The troops advanced nearly to the city, but the fortifications are very strong.

Our losses are heavy. An officer from the field estimates our killed and wounded at over 1,000 men. Shells, supposedly from the Spanish fleet, did heavy execution among our troops. During a lull in the fighting an impressive incident occurred. The Twenty-first infantry was out in front and suffering heavy loss from the Spanish fire, but the men sang the "Star Spangled Banner," even the wounded joining in the singing.

9 P. M.—At this hour the fighting has practically stopped and will be resumed in the morning. Our troops have gained several breastworks. They encountered a barbed wire fence eight feet high.

TO CARE FOR THE WOUNDED.

Shafter Asks for a Hospital Ship and Surgeons.

WASHINGTON, July 2.—Owing to the many conflicting reports of the losses of the American troops in yesterday's engagement, it has been thought best by the War Department officials to make public the text of General Shafter's last despatch, received this morning at 4 o'clock. It is as follows:

"Siboney, via Playa del Este, July 1.—Adjutant General, Washington: I fear I have underestimated today's casualties. A large and thoroughly equipped hospital ship should be sent here at once, to care for the wounded. The chief surgeon says he has use for forty more medical officers. The ship must bring a launch and boats for conveying the wounded.

SHAFTER,
Major General."

TWO SHIPS AVAILABLE.

Solace Already at Santiago; Relief Will Sail Today.

WASHINGTON, July 2.—Immediately upon receiving General Shafter's telegram concerning the killed and wounded, Surgeon General Sternberg, of the army, called on General Van Reypen, the surgeon of the navy and the two held a long conference. Fortunately, ambulance ship Solace is now in the vicinity of Santiago, and will be utilized. While the Solace is destined for the use of the fleet, she will be put at the deposition of the army whenever that may be necessary. The navy and army ships will be used interchangeably.

Hurried preparations are being made to send General Shafter the medical assistance asked for. Hospital ship Relief, which has been undergoing repairs and a thorough overhauling at New York, is about ready to start for Santiago. She will leave today.

Secretary Alger is authority for the statement that no additional troops will be sent from Camp Alger to Santiago before the eighth or ninth of the month. The reason for this is that auxiliary cruisers Yale and Harvard, which were selected for the purpose of transporting the troops to Cuba, will not be ready to start on the next trip for the island before that date. The change was necessitated by reason of the fact that, instead of returning direct to Newport News, it was found expedient to have the Yale go to New York. There is reason for the belief that the change in the program was made in order to allow the Yale to take a number of sick and wounded soldiers from Santiago for treatment in northern cities. The authorities of the War Department have deemed it best to have the troops of General Henry's division, which have been ordered to Santiago, remain at Camp Alger until the steamer is at Newport News, ready to take them to Santiago, without subjecting them to any unnecessary delay at Newport News.

NOT A SKIRMISH.

Engagement Was Evidently General and Terrific.

WASHINGTON, July 2.—The profound concern throughout military and official circles marked the opening of the second day upon which the battle at Santiago is being fought. The desperate character of the fighting is now fully known to the War Department. The information is in addition to the report made by General Shafter last night, when he roughly estimated his casualties as above 400. Later reports, official and direct from the field, indicate that the estimate was far too low. General Shafter had not, up to 11 o'clock this morning, placed any exact figure on his loss, but he had made it clear that his first estimate was much short of the actual loss. The Associated Press despatch from the field, giving the casualties at about 1,000, is in line with General Shafter's later estimation, although, as stated, he sets no figure.

The military authorities were at it early in the day, despite the fact that they had been up well through the night anxiously waiting for the latest reports. Secretary Alger and the adjutant general of the army, General Corbin, held a conference as soon as the Secretary arrived. Then Surgeon General Sternberg was sent for and joined in the conference. It is said the surgeon general will send a large force of medical officers, some forty or fifty in addition to those already with General Shafter's men. Neither the Secretary nor the adjutant general would add anything to the information given out at midnight. It was said, however, that the estimate of killed and wounded first made by General Shafter was more likely to be under than over the real loss, as the dense growth of chapparal in which the American troops fought made it well nigh impossible at first to learn the extent of the loss.

The news that our men had forced their way, foot by foot, up the commanding plateau of Caney was welcome indeed, but there was now a full realization that this had been done in the face of a withering fire. Instead of a skirmish on the right flank, as the later reports yesterday indicated, it was now clear that a general engagement, and a terrific one, had been fought under the broiling sun and in the tangled vegetation northeast of Santiago.

General Miles and staff were together in the general's office early in the day. Spread on the desk was a map showing in detail every roadway about Santiago. The general traced the line of operations yesterday, and the probable line of action now in progress. He had received nothing additional from the field. He spoke gravely of the fierceness of the fighting yesterday. From a strategic point of view, Lawton's taking of Caney yesterday gave an elevation on the right wing serving the double purpose of diverting the enemy from the left and opening a way to our left wing, and also of giving our troops a more commanding sweep of the enemy's defenses. Incidentally, it served the important purpose, at least to some extent, of preventing Pando's coming down with reinforcements from the north and turning our right flank.

NOTHING FROM SHAFTER.

No Official Knowledge That Fighting is Still in Progress.

WASHINGTON, July 2.—"Not a word has been received from General Shafter by the War Department since his despatch of 3 o'clock this morning," said Adjutant General Corbin at half-past twelve o'clock today. The despatch referred to was that in which the general indicated his fear that he had underestimated the actual casualties, and had asked for medical assistance. Consequently, the administration is unaware officially of any fighting that may be in progress, and knows nothing more regarding affairs at the front than are contained in the press despatches.

CALLED BACK.

Army Intended to Relieve Santiago Abandons the Attempt.

(Copyright, 1898, by the Associated Press.)

MONTEGO BAY, Island of Jamaica, July 1, 10:30 P. M.—(Delayed in transmission).—A Cuban messenger from the insurgent near Manzanillo, province of Santiago de Cuba, who landed near here today from a sailboat, brought the intelligence that the Spanish troops, numbering about 8,000 men, which left Manzanillo June 25 to march to Santiago de Cuba, were called back by General Pando. It appears that when the army had reached the vicinity of Bayamo General Pando was not with his troops, as had been reported. He was said to be in Havana.

The relieving army, the Cubans say, was ill supplied with food and the roads were almost impassable, and the artillery could not be dragged along. Therefore, to Santiago in time to relieve the garrison there appeared to be hopeless; hence the recall of the troops.

PANDO IN SANTIAGO?

NEW YORK, July 2.—The Evening World prints a special despatch from Playa del Este, Cuba, saying that General Pando has succeeded by forced marches in entering Santiago with 6,000 men. The small force of 800 Cubans was insufficient to stop him.

Mr. Trout has reason to believe in the efficacy of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and [illegible] to say so.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills saved the life [of his] daughter.

[illegible] her when eminent physicians [illegible] when the pharmacopoeia was exhausted; when science acknowledged defeat.

The gratitude of the father overbalances the natural conservatism of the man, and he tells the world his story that others may be benefited.

"At the age of fourteen," said Mr. Trout, "we had to take our daughter [illegible] on account of her health. She began to fall away, and became pale and languid. She was so weak she would fall down every time she tried to walk [un]escorted.

"When she was fifteen she weighed only [illegible] pounds.

"She was actually fading away.

"Several physicians said she might out[grow it], [illegible] that it would no doubt terminate in consumption.

"She was growing weaker every day; we concluded we must lose our child.

"The medical profession had exhausted their skill, we had tried all the well known remedies. Finally I bought a box of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People and took them home to her. Before she had taken all of the first box we noticed a change for the better.

"She gained strength daily.

"Every one noticed the change; I bought [illegible] boxes. When she had taken them she was strong enough to leave her bed, and in less than six months was sometime [illegible] herself.

"To-day she is entirely cured, and is a fine, strong, healthy girl, weighing 130 pounds, and has never had a sick day since.

"I know Dr. Williams' Pink Pills saved my daughter's life and I am glad to recommend them to the world."

To further verify this statement Mr. Trout made affidavit to its truthfulness before Robert E. Hull, Jr., Notary Public.

The last decade of the nineteenth century has been marked by some of the most important discoveries in the history of the world. None have done more to benefit mankind than Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. Some of the cures effected by this wonderful remedy almost equal the miracles of old. Diseases long supposed incurable have succumbed to their [illegible] The paralyzed have walked; the weak and ailing have stepped from their beds well and strong. The evidence is irrefutable. SEASONABLE NOTES.

The terrible walls of barbed wire that are getting in the way of our soldiers in Cuba are made of material shipped from this country. The United States furnished thousands of tons of barbed wire to the Spaniards to enable them to distress the Cubans, and now it is a stumbling block to our own army.

What an amazing and long remembered Fourth of July this would be if the whole people devoted themselves to suppressing noise for the day, and to good works, thinking chiefly of those who are suffering through the war. Aside from the thought of the carnage of the battles that may be taking place in either hemisphere at the moment, the knowledge of the starvation and death and ruin that the nation is carrying to thousands of non-combatants in Manila, Santiago, Havana and other places makes one shrink from a racketing celebration of the national holiday for this year.

Two hours amply covers the time required for a ride by trolley from Newport to the Stone Bridge and return. A delightful ride it is on a day after the rain has laid the dust. However familiar one may be with the island roads, they take on a new aspect as seen from the cars, and it is easy to pass well known corners without noticing them, and to lose the sense of locality even to the extent of looking on the surroundings as a foreign country.

Going out, the cars run steadily except for the moment pause at the white poles, but coming back there are several stops at turnouts, often long enough to allow the passengers to descend and gather the wild roses, sweet clovers and daisies that line the road. From present indications, however, it will not be long before the wild flowers will be gone from the neighborhood of the turnouts. There is not much regard for the roots when flowers are taken in a hurry.

The scenery along the way is most picturesque, and prettily diversified. After turning at the Two Mile corner the view of harbor and bay is lost, and it is on the right that the loveliest scenes open for the entire distance to the bridge. At first the beach and the ocean beyond fill in the hollows over the meadows and farms. Later Peter's Rock and the ridges of Paradise make a famous background for quiet scenery near. As the car rises on Slate hill a shady, inviting road leads to the right, straight into the heart of a little forest known to be possessed by ferns and wild flowers and wild grapevines, and destined now to become a favorite walk of Newporters.

As the road goes on it gets into prettier and prettier farming country, with comfortable-looking homes on all sides, where climbing roses are running rampant on the houses and peonies are making gay and syringas sweeten the air for miles, adding zest to the colors of clover and new-mown hay that haunt the whole route.

Passing St. Mary's, the way takes on a look of an English drive, wide and shaded with great trees, bordered with smooth, well-kept lawns, and with an air of having been settled for many years back and not to be unsettled for many years to come. It is a short distance farther to where the view of the mainland breaks on a happy outlook. There is but a pool of water visible, and the hilly ridge, so gently green and dotted with farms and forests, would seem to belong to the island if the coloring did not give it the look of a different land. Farther still, at the crest of Quaker Hill, is a view worth an effort to see, but now fairly brought to our doors. From here water and mainland are visible from the bay to the ocean. Farther on, as the road gets nearer the bridge and the thick-set cottages at Tiverton add another note of color to the scene, the interweaving of land and water makes almost as lovely a picture as that for which the heights of Tiverton are noted. One of the most interesting stretches of the road is where it passes through the village of Portsmouth, hitherto an unknown neighboring town to most of the Newporters who are seeing and admiring the pretty, restful-looking village for the first time.

Mole St. Nicholas should have been named for the father of all liars. There is barely a day when some untrue tale fails to come from there. It is in general something cheering for the Spaniards and otherwise for us, but the reputation of the place has become such that there is no occasion for jubilation or worry over whatever news is sent out from it. Poor St. Nicholas! For eight hundred years he has been loved and revered as the friend of children and young maidens, the Santa Claus, the patron of sailors, travelers and captives. Now, in the honored old age of his sainthood, and fifteen hundred years too late for him to defend himself, his name is associated with what all peoples despise.

WAR AND PRIVATE PROPERTY.

The attitude of this government from its foundation down to the outbreak of the present war, has been consistent in its advocacy of the exemption of private property, except contraband of war, from capture at sea. It adopted the principle in the treaty of 1785, negotiated by Franklin with Frederick the Great. In 1823 it proposed its adoption by the governments of England, France and Russia. In 1856 it refused to accede to the declaration of Paris in favor of the abolition of privateering unless the principle was adopted, which failed owing to the opposition of Great Britain. In 1861 Mr. Seward favored its acceptance and in 1870 Mr. Fish expressed to the Prussian government the hope that "the government of the United States may soon be gratified by seeing it universally recognized, as another restraining and humanizing influence imposed by modern civilization upon the art of war." In 1871 it was adopted in our treaty with Italy, stipulating that in case of war between them "the private property of their respective citizens and subjects, with the exception of contraband of war, shall be exempt from capture or seizure, on the high seas or elsewhere, by the armed vessels or by the military forces of either party," except in the attempt to enter a blockaded port. FRENCH BLACK AND WHITE FOULARD GOWN FROM HARPER'S BAZAR

BLACK AND WHITE FOULARD GOWN.

Black and white, which still holds popularity, is the combination in a graceful costume of foulard white patterned with black, and trimmed with lace and black velvet.

The skirt has three shaped flounces. The one at the foot is quite narrow directly in front, slightly wider at the sides, and slopes gradually higher toward the back, its fullness slightly trailing behind. On the front one flounce describes one side of a long apron, and when it reaches the bottom becomes a part of the lower ruffle. The upper end gradually tapers toward the waist, where it is fastened just below the black velvet belt by a French rosette, composed of pointed ends of velvet ribbon inserted airily between double bows, and held by a jetted buckle. A similar rosette fastens the second ruffle, which curves below the other at a graceful distance. It is a Paris fancy to use several flounces arranged in this manner on one side of the skirt, making a line of four or five rosettes. The ruffles are each headed by a narrow bias fold of white satin foulard, of which the foundation skirt is composed. The skirt is a sixgored model, three and one-half yards in width.

White silk muslin, the fabric of the season, is used for the tail waist under a little square jacket of black lace over white silk. Three circular ruffles form revers and surmount the close tailor sleeve, which is trimmed with a narrow circular ruffle from wrist to elbow. The proper cut of this gown can be obtained only from the cut paper patterns published by Harper's Bazar, where it appears.

Quantity of material for gown: Foulard, 13 yards; black lace, 1 yard; velvet ribbon, 3½ yards; silk muslin, 3 yards.

"Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions, duly engrossed and attested by the secretary of the state, be forwarded to General Charles R. Dennis." By order of

ELISHA DYER,

General Orders No. 35:

GOVERNOR DYER AND THE CINCINNATI.

Governor Elisha Dyer has received a letter from Colonel Asa Bird Gardiner of New York, informing him of the intention of the standing committee of the Rhode Island Society of Cincinnati to elect him at the annual meeting in this city, Monday, an honorary member of that organization. The portion of the letter referring to the election of Governor Dyer to membership reads as follows:

"By the transfer of ex-Governor Lippitt from the honorary to the hereditary list, in right of his great grandfather, Captain Charles Lippitt of the Rhode Island Continental line of the Revolution, our standing committee is in a situation to make recommendation of an honorary member, who, under our Institution of 1783, has all the rights and privileges of an original member except heritable succession.

"It is our desire to number you among our members, not only by reason of the personal friendship many of us sustain towards you, but by reason of our respect for you as a representative citizen of our beloved state of Rhode Island and Providence Plantations.

"The standing committee, therefore, intend to present your name as an honorary member, and as no recommendation of that committee has ever yet, in 111 years, been gainsaid, it may be considered an fait accompli."

RHODE ISLAND COLONIAL AND REVOLUTIONARY SOLDIERS.

To the Editor of the Daily News:

The General Assembly of the State of Rhode Island and Providence Plantations at its January session, A. D. 1898, passed a resolution directing the state record commissioner "to procure from such sources as may be available a list of the officers and soldiers of the colony and state of Rhode Island who were engaged in the Colonial wars and in the war of the Revolution, with the time they entered and were in the service, the commands to which they were respectively attached, and the rank the officers sustained, and to copy the same in a manner suitable for publication."

As but comparatively few "lists" and muster rolls of Rhode Island Colonial and Revolutionary soldiers are to be found in the archives of this state, it is presumed that many of these documents are in private hands, in libraries, and among the papers in the custody of city and town clerks.

The undersigned has already received many of these papers, and he would respectfully request all persons having regimental order books, pay rolls, muster rolls, etc., of Rhode Island regiments, to forward the same to him to be copied or deposited in the public archives.

The aid of all interested in completing the rolls of Rhode Island Colonial and Revolutionary soldiers, as above suggested, is respectfully solicited and will be of great service to the state and fully appreciated.

R. HAMMETT TILLEY,
State Record Commissioner.

THE STAR-SPANGLED BANNER.

O say, can you see by the dawn's early light
What so proudly we hailed at the twilight's last gleaming?
Whose broad stripes and bright stars, thro' the perilous fight,
O'er the ramparts we watched were so gallantly streaming,
And the rocket's red glare, the bombs bursting in air,
Gave proof thro' the night that our flag was still there:
O say, does that star-spangled banner yet wave
O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave?

Chorus:
O say, does that star-spangled banner yet wave
O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave?

And war's clamors o'er, with her mantle of peace
Once again in its folds, the nation enshrouded;
Let no fratricide hand uplifted e'er be,
The glory to dim which now is unclouded.
Not as North or as South in the future we'll stand,
But as brothers united throughout our broad land;
And the star-spangled banner forever shall wave
O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave.

Chorus:
And the star-spangled banner forever shall wave
O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave.

O thus be it ever when freemen shall stand
Between their loved homes and the war's desolation;
Blest with victory and peace, may the Heav'n rescued land
Praise the power that has made and preserved us a nation.
Then conquer we must, when our cause it is just,
And this be our motto: "In God is our trust!"
And the star-spangled banner in triumph shall wave
O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave.

Chorus:
And the star-spangled banner forever shall wave
O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave.

BATTLE HYMN OF THE REPUBLIC.

Mine eyes have seen the glory of the coming of the Lord:
He is trampling out the vintage where the grapes of wrath are stored;
He hath loosed the fateful lightning of His terrible swift sword;
His truth is marching on.

Chorus:
Glory! Glory Hallelujah!
Glory! Glory! Glory Hallelujah!
Glory! Glory Hallelujah!
His truth is marching on!

I have seen Him in the watch-fires of a hundred circling camps;
They have builded Him an altar in the evening dews and damps;
I can read His righteous sentence by the dim and flaring lamps:
His day is marching on!

Chorus.

I have read a fiery gospel writ in burnished rows of steel:
"As ye deal with my contemners, so with you my grace shall deal;
Let the Hero born of woman crush the serpent with his heel,
Since God is marching on!"

Chorus.

He has sounded forth the trumpet that shall never call retreat;
He is sifting out the hearts of men before His judgment seat;
Oh, be swift, my soul, to answer Him! Be jubilant, my feet!
Our God is marching on!

Chorus.

In the beauty of the lilies Christ was born across the sea,
With a glory in His bosom that transfigures you and me;
As He died to make men holy, let us die to make men free,
While God is marching on.

Chorus.

HAIL! COLUMBIA!

Hail! Columbia, happy land!
Hail! ye heroes, Heav'n-born band,
Who fought and bled in freedom's cause,
Who fought and bled in freedom's cause,
And when the storm of war was gone,
Enjoyed the peace your valor won;
Let Independence be your boast,
Ever mindful what it cost,
Ever grateful for the prize,
Let its altar reach the skies.

Chorus:
Firm, united, let us be,
Rallying round our liberty,
As a band of brothers joined,
Peace and safety we shall find.

Immortal patriots, rise once more!
Defend your rights, defend your shore,
Let no rude foe, with impious hand,
Let no rude foe, with impious hand,
Invade the shrine where sacred lies,
Of toil and blood, the well-earned prize.
While off'ring peace, sincere and just,
In Heav'n we place a manly trust,
That truth and justice may prevail,
And ev'ry scheme of bondage fail!

Chorus:

Sound, sound the trump of fame!
Let Washington's great name
Ring thro' the world with loud applause!
Ring thro' the world with loud applause!
Let ev'ry clime, to freedom dear,
Listen with a joyful ear:
With equal skill, with steady power,
He governs in the fearful hour
Of horrid war, or guides with ease
The happier time of honest peace.

Chorus:

Behold the chief who now commands,
Once more to serve his country, stands
The rock on which the storm will beat!
The rock on which the storm will beat!
But armed in virtue, firm and true,
His hopes are fixed on Heav'n and you:
When hope was sinking in dismay,
When glooms obscured Columbia's day,
His steady mind, from changes free,
Resolved on death or liberty.

Chorus.

AMERICA.

My country, 'tis of thee,
Sweet land of liberty,
Of thee I sing!
Land where my fathers died,
Land of the pilgrims' pride,
From every mountain side
Let freedom ring!

My native country, thee,
Land of the noble free,
Thy name I love:
I love thy rocks and rills,
Thy woods and templed hills,
My heart with rapture thrills,
Like that above.

Let music swell the breeze,
And ring from all the trees
Sweet freedom's song;
Let mortal tongues awake,
Let all that breathe partake,
Let rocks their silence break,
The sound prolong.

Our fathers' God, to Thee,
Author of liberty,
To thee we sing:
Long may our land be bright
With freedom's holy light,
Protect us with Thy might,
Great God, our King!

LESSONS OF NAVAL WARFARE.

America has [illegible] had the reputation of being [illegible] naval power, but [illegible] the world now that the war with Spain [illegible] [illegible] when an opportunity has been afforded, to determine whether or not we could fight upon the sea. But it is to be presumed that no one will now deny the ability and [illegible] of our commanders and the [illegible] and good work of our [illegible] during the short campaign that has already proceeded. [illegible]

[illegible]

THE GLORIOUS FOURTH.

The promise is that Newport will have a larger and more [illegible] celebration of the Fourth of July than has occurred within its borders for many years. The presence of the [illegible] regiment at Fort Adams affords an opportunity of lengthening out the procession, with just the right material, which every one will appreciate and which will add much to the interest of the day. The reappearance of the fire department in the line on such an occasion will be to many of the younger people a sort of revelation, as it has been some time since this department of the city government has been fully represented. Besides, the times are such that the patriotic impulses of the people are stirred to their depths, and while our sons and brothers are fighting in Cuba and doing the country service in the Philippines and other sections of the world, it is easy to get thus far to the front on the part of all our people, whether combatants or otherwise.

We remember a famous occasion when the Fourth of July received a signal token through the surrender of Vicksburg on this our natal day. And should it now be that Santiago surrenders on that day, or between this and that, the enthusiasm will know no bounds. The result of General Shafter's attack on the Cuban stronghold is not at this writing known, though we are expecting to hear strong news from that quarter every hour. The question may be determined even before we go to press, and if so we shall have a special occasion for rejoicing, and shall find ourselves upon the Fourth of July nearer in condition to celebrate according to the original outline as set forth by President John Adams and so long honored in the history of our country.

All the indications point to the fact that Newport is to have a great day. Her people are thoroughly interested in the arrangements in progress, and it is known that many excursionists propose to come to the City by the Sea to witness the pageant and share in the pleasure. It is a good place, with its invigorating air and cool sea breezes, in which to spend the Fourth, and we are prepared to welcome a great host.

IMPERIALISM

No matter by what name the system may be called, imperialism or [illegible] [illegible], the fact remains that there is to be a wide departure in the form of our government and the method to be employed in regard to outlying countries. There is no disputing the fact that a strong feeling permeates the whole American population in favor of holding the possessions which we conquer from Spain, and ultimately bringing them under the American flag. Whether or not this will except [illegible] policy of the government cannot now be decided, but there is no denying that the trend leads in [illegible] the people and in Congress [illegible] direction.

Six months ago such a theory would scarcely have been tolerated by the general public, but we have come to the point where we are dealing with conditions and not with theory, and the conditions [illegible] such as will very likely overcome theoretic problems which have so far [illegible] us. In reality, no matter [illegible] ought to be or what will be done with the conquered islands and territories which may fall to our lot, one thing [illegible] it is safe to say that we [illegible] the extension of our territory in these various directions, but [illegible] conditions may arise that [illegible] into measures which would [illegible] in harmony with our [illegible]. Such conditions have, in fact, already [illegible] but he must be a bold man [illegible] yet prepared to say definitely [illegible] duty under the changed [illegible] which have come providentially [illegible].

The wonder [illegible] the people of Spain will [illegible] to the realities of the [illegible]. They have been [illegible] reports of victories won over [illegible] and American [illegible] have kept them [illegible] to believe that [illegible] [illegible] be [illegible] [illegible] [illegible].

Senator Thurston of Nebraska [illegible] Senator Manderson's seat in the United States Senate a few years ago [illegible] exactly satisfied with the position which he occupies. It is not often that a United States Senator looks down upon [illegible] [illegible] but it now comes to pass that Mr. Thurston prefers the practice of law [illegible] the highest legislative body in the world. We believe but one precedent exists [illegible] of this kind in the history of the country.

We sometimes hear local politicians [illegible] civil service reform [illegible] But they [illegible] whose opinion [illegible] the highest [illegible] Things [illegible].

The news from Manila indicates that the expected reinforcements have not yet arrived, though they are supposed to be long overdue. But the voyage of this kind have not been frequently made and the course is not altogether familiar, the calculations may have been quite misleading. Still, it is to be hoped that the recruits will soon be on hand, for the situation demands their presence.

[illegible]

SPAIN'S [illegible]

[illegible]

A good deal is said in regard to the expedition fitted out under Commodore Watson pursuing and capturing Camara's fleet. As the Spaniards have so large a lead in the race, this will be a somewhat difficult experiment. A stern chase is always understood to be a long chase. And Camara has some 6,000 miles the start of his pursuer.

A despatch from Madrid says a mysterious sky rocket which has been invented and which is capable of blowing up a battleship can be "operated by three men in a rowboat." That is very convenient, because in a little time "three men in a rowboat" will constitute nearly if not quite all the Spanish navy.

Government loans in this country are among our most popular institutions. It is now reported that $500,000,000 has been subscribed by the people where only $200,000,000 is wanted. And this, too, at the rate of three per cent interest.

Some people are arguing that the rush in subscriptions for the new government loan at three per cent interest should be followed by a reduction in discounts at our national and other banks, most of which are still charging six per cent.

Ex-Senator David Bennett Hill is a delegate to the Democratic state convention in New York. He may not open his first address by saying "I am a Democrat," though it might be well for him to do so.

The Suez canal is about the only place for the Spanish navy [illegible] and where there is plain and safe sailing. It is no wonder that Camara desires to navigate such waters.

The amount of money paid in the country for July dividends is the largest on record.

And now 1898 is "half seas over."

A VOTE OF THANKS BY CONGRESS.

I have received several inquiries as to the effect of a vote of thanks by Congress to Admiral Dewey, his officers and men, for their gallant victory at Manila. The impression seems to prevail in some places that the vote carried with it a seat in Congress. This is a mistake. The privilege of the floor, which is a great honor, is the right to enter the House of Representatives and the Senate at pleasure, except when the latter body is in secret executive session. It is conferred by law upon the President and the members of his cabinet, justices of the Supreme Court of the United States, ex-members of Congress who are not interested as agents in pending legislation, and those who have received by name a vote of thanks from Congress. Persons not entitled to the privilege are compelled to enter the galleries to hear the proceedings, and to send their cards in to members they want to see.

A vote of thanks by Congress is an honor seldom conferred. During the civil war it occurred only twelve times. It was first given December 24, 1861, to Brigadier General Nathaniel Lyon, his officers and men, for their gallant conduct at the battle of Springfield, Mo. March 3, 1863, Major General William S. Rosecrans was thanked by Congress for the gallant conduct of his officers and [illegible] at the battle of Murfreesboro, Tenn. Major General Ulysses S. Grant received the honor and a medal December 17, 1863. Major General Nathaniel P. Banks, January 28, 1864, for services at Port Hudson. Major General Joseph Hooker, George G. Meade, Oliver H. Howard and the officers and soldiers of the Army of the Potomac, all in one vote on the same day, to General Hooker for [illegible] energy and endurance in covering Washington and Baltimore and [illegible] and heroic valor displayed at Gettysburg.

Major General W. T. Sherman, his officers and men twice received the honor, the first time February 19, 1864, for gallant [illegible] in reference to the [illegible] of the Army of the Cumberland, and again June 10, 1865, for their conduct in the brilliant movement through Georgia. Lieutenant General Joseph Hooker, of the Fourth Wisconsin volunteers, was thanked June 11, 1864, for distinguished services. Brevet Major General Alfred H. Terry, January 24, 1865, was mentioned for unsurpassed gallantry and skill exhibited by his command in the attack on Fort Fisher. Major General George H. Thomas, March 3, 1865, received resolutions for the signal defeat of the rebel army under General Hood.

The last on the list prior to Admiral Dewey was Major General Winfield Scott Hancock, April 21, 1866, for his services with the Army of the Potomac in 1863. When peace was restored, May 30, 1866, "the officers, soldiers and seamen of the United States, by whose valor and endurance, on land and on sea, the rebellion has been crushed," received a joint resolution expressing the gratitude of the nation. "I had a pain between my shoulders and did not have any appetite. I took Hood's Sarsaparilla and it relieved the pain and gave me an appetite. After having the grip I was in poor health, but a few bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla completely restored me. My sister's little girl had liver trouble, and at one time she was not expected to live. They began giving her Hood's Sarsaparilla and now she is well and strong and has rosy cheeks which she did not have before taking Hood's Sarsaparilla." Miss Susan A. Dutton, Thompson, Conn.

Y. M. C. A. NOTES.

Since Rev. E. S. Kilpatrick has assumed the oversight of the religious work among the soldiers at Fort Adams there has been a marked increase in the efficiency and interest in this department. The erection of a second tent, which was sent from New York, having been presented for this work by the Church of the Pilgrims of Brooklyn, has gone far to solve a problem which had given the committee in charge of the movement much concern, how best to conduct gospel meetings and allow the men to converse, read, write and play games at the same time. The present arrangement is almost ideal and is pronounced by those who know to be the best in effect in any camp in New England.

The facilities are appreciated even more than at first. Up to this noon fully 3,000 letters had been written. The list of reading matter is increasing daily, and is a source of great attraction.

The meeting tomorrow afternoon will be addressed by Rev. E. H. Porter, chaplain of the Newport Artillery.

The financial side of the work is also encouraging, over $100 having been already received, the largest amount being $26.62, from the United Congregational Church. Several other churches will take collections tomorrow, and others one week from tomorrow.

The following figures of attendance at the June meetings show that the interest is on the increase. Morning prayer meetings, Total attendance, 46; average 12. Men's meetings—Total, 221; average, 56. Forty-five vessels were visited and 502 pieces of matter distributed among the sailors in the harbor and upon the Constellation.

STAMPING TELEGRAPH MESSAGES.

The telegraph offices have successfully survived the first day of stamped messages. The public does not take kindly to this system, and sees no reason why it should pay 26 cents where before but 25 was charged. But the law is there, and they had to pay—that is, those who did not have accounts; these had them charged. The Western Union did not have stamps and so only had to collect the extra cent. In the Postal the manager was unlucky enough to have received stamps, and the force was kept busy giving instruction on cancelling said stamps by writing across the face the date and the sender's initials. After a while everybody who is in the habit of sending telegrams will do this work as mechanically as they now address and sign telegrams, and then the telegraph clerks will have an easier time.

The lawyers and public officials who have to do with legal documents that may or may not require stamps are in a quandary. There has been no official interpretation of the law sent out, and each will have to guess for himself what the law means.

PORTSMOUTH.

[Regular correspondence of the News.]

Rev. William H. Butler of the Methodist Episcopal Church will give a patriotic address Sunday evening. The first and third Sundays in each month he will make fifteen-minute addresses, before the close of the Sunday school, in which he will give a connected view of the Bible and of the mission fields of the church. The subjects for July will be "The Dark Continent" and "The Bible and Other Bibles."

B. Archie Chase, who has been in the employ of the R. S. Reed Company, Warren, for quite a long time, has returned here.

Edward Mahoney and family have moved into the tenement in the house of E. E. Anthony.

The Vaucluse school held its annual picnic Thursday, in the woods of David Albro on Love lane, and, although the weather was not very favorable, a pleasant time was had.

Miss Tiblets, teacher in the Vaucluse district, will spend her vacation at her home in Alfred, Me. In company with Mrs. Herbert and Mrs. Lane Chase she attended the graduating exercises in Newport Friday.

A clambake and dance were given at the new park Friday evening.

PORTO RICO'S COMMERCE.

Porto Rico has long been a more productive colony for Spain than even Cuba itself, and has steadily been growing in commercial and agricultural importance. The greater part of this commerce, let it be remembered, has long since veered over to the United States. According to the latest available statistics, American trade with Porto Rico has been gaining at the rate of $2,000,000 each year. The colony's annual exports to Spain, for instance, have amounted to something like $6,000,000 of late, while those of America amounted to $8,000,000. Yet all this while there has been an undoubted depression of trade, partly because of the war and the unsettled state of business preceding it, and partly because of the recent changes in our tariff which have seriously affected the sugar trade of the West Indies, already suffering acutely from the development of the beet-sugar industry. This summer an unusually rich sugar harvest has only served to emphasize the state of affairs.

Porto Rico has had to suffer with the others, for there as well as elsewhere in the West Indies the staple products are sugar and molasses, though the cultivation of coffee and tobacco is said to be encroaching upon the profits of the sugar planters. Other lucrative exports are fruit, guano, live stock and hides. The live stock, and particularly the horses, are justly famous all over the West Indies. Wherever I went on a recent cruise through the Caribbean sea, at all events, I found that Porto Rico ponies were preferred to all others. Personally I can attest that I have never ridden a better horse than the cream-colored little pacer on the bareback of which I rode over the mountainous trails of eastern Porto Rico this summer, sparing neither man nor beast and stopping for nothing but necessity.—Edwin Emerson, Jr. in American Monthly Review of Reviews for July.

NEW LIGHT WEIGHT UNIFORMS.

The first uniforms of the new style adopted by the War Department for use by the troops in the tropics have been completed. Thirty thousand of these uniforms are now being made and will be delivered to the army within ten days, and they will continue to be made until the armies for Cuba, Porto Rico and the Philippines are all equipped. The uniforms are made of brown duck woven of a special yarn. The jackets are fashioned after the English hunting jackets, with heavily plaited backs and wide belts which are detachable. They are single breasted, with five buttons, and have two large pockets on each side held by button flaps. In these pockets, where the hunter with a similar suit would carry birds, the soldier can, if necessary, carry a day's rations. The cuffs, shoulder straps and pocket flaps are the color required to designate the arms of service to which the wearer belongs: blue for the infantry, yellow for the cavalry and red for the artillery. The style of uniform is adapted in part from the uniform of the English army in Egypt, but is better in appearance than any uniform worn by European troops in the tropics, while the material is unique. Ordinary duck used in the trade varies in weight from eight to twelve ounces to the yard, while the material in the uniforms weighs only six and a half ounces to the yard. The seams are extra lapped and stayed. The material is steam shrunk, so that the wearers may wash their uniforms at any time and will be able to get into them afterward.

"THE POOR MAN'S WALDORF."

The public for some time has lost sight of the hotel built in New York by D. O. Mills for respectable people of small means, sometimes called "the poor man's Waldorf," because it furnishes rather luxurious quarters for the small sum of twenty cents per day for each room. The project was conceived as a sort of philanthropic enterprise and it is really philanthropic to emancipate men of cleanly instincts and little money from the necessity of resorting to the ordinary cheap lodging house. At the same time Mr. Mills declared at the outset that he believed the hotel could be made to pay expenses and a small profit on the investment in addition, and his prevision has been amply justified. The building cost a little more than $1,000,000. Almost from the time of opening the 1,560 bedrooms have been occupied nightly, and very often hundreds have been turned away. Only six of the ten stores on the ground floor have been rented up to the present time. The restaurant was a considerable source of profit until the advance in breadstuffs and provisions. Meals are furnished at five, ten and fifteen cents each, which is about as cheap as anything in the eatable line can be figured. The figures of annual receipts and expenditures, partly estimated, run as follows: Restaurant, $26,000; room rents, $100,500; rent from stores, $3,420, making a total of $158,320. The estimated expenses are: Taxes on $500,000 assessment, $10,700; repairs, $500, incidentals, $500; gas and electric lighting, $6,000; 150 employes, at an average of $9 a week, $72,000; water tax, $1,400. Total, $92,200, leaving a net profit of $16,120 on an outlay of $1,000,000—a safe 6 per cent investment.

Mr. Mills is said to be now completing a lodging-house for families on the same plan, as regards cleanliness and hygiene. He will charge $8.50 a month for three rooms and office. He is also building Mills Hotel No. 2, on the East side, supposed to be for single women. The present hotel is exclusively for men, but a home a once a[?] that for as little money would be a godsend to thousands of respectable women who have their own way to make in the world.

There are rumors that Mr. Mills will have competition in this line of philanthrophy. A syndicate is preparing to build a hotel on a similar plan to his in Harlem, and there is a report also that the Astors propose to erect a monster at Broadway and Seventh avenue, the rooms to rent at from twenty to fifty cents a night. There is reason to believe that hotels and lodging houses on a similar plan would pay in smaller cities, and it is to be hoped that liberal minded capitalists can be made to see it.—Minneapolis Tribune.

THE PHILIPPINES AS A TRADE CENTRE.

American interest in far-off affairs has witnessed a veritable boom since that memorable first of May this year. That at least, would seem to be the first conclusion arrivable at, when the numerous mass of information regarding Asiatic trade conditions and outlook which has been published is considered. That the basis of much of this very apparent popular demand for information is the thrifty American anxiety to look for possible trade extension in that direction, seems quite evident. That this trade extension may be greatly accelerated by the obtaining of a base in Asiatic waters from which American interests may operate seems likewise accepted. One development of this popular interest is witnessed in the preparation by the bureau of statistics of the Treasury Department of a series of tables concerning the trade done between the United States and a number of countries of Asia in the vicinity of the Philippines. Of course it is well known that the most thickly populated countries on the face of the globe are situated not far from the Philippine Islands, China and British India being notable examples in this latter respect. While, of course, supplies for the vast population that lies within measurable distance of the Philippines, variously estimated at from 800,000,000 to 900,000,000, might not be so valuable or expensive individually as is the demand from our own or European sources, still the vast number of people to be supplied with products, a number of which can be and are made in surplus quantities in the United States, render any statistics of this character of live commercial interest.

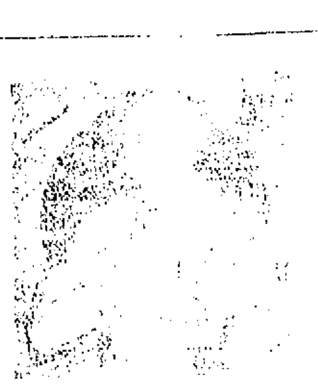

To the group of countries adjacent to the Philippines, including China, British India, the East Indies, Japan, Corea and Asiatic Russia, the exports of the United States are shown to have increased from a sum slightly in excess of $27,000,000 in 1893 to nearly $62,000,000 in 1897, and yet in spite of this growth our shipments to these countries make up less than 6 per cent of their total imports. Most of these imports, too, are of products largely produced in the United States. For instance, Chinese imports in 1896 included $61,000,000 worth of cotton goods, over $1,000,000 worth of woolen goods, large quantities of flour and machinery also being imported. That we have already enjoyed some of this trade seems certain from the fact that the export of cotton cloth from the United States to China increased from 27,000,000 yards in 1895 to 110,000,000 yards in 1897, and our total exports of merchandise to China in 1897 were three times as [illegible] in 1893. Our exports of cotton [illegible] British India also [illegible] the Dutch East Indies [illegible]

Cuban Government Maintaining Itself Against Attacks.

WASHINGTON, July 2.—Captain Nicholas Perez Stable, aide-de-camp of the secretary of war of Cuba, Colonel Constantine, has arrived here and was in conference with Major General Miles and the other officers [illegible]. Captain Stable came directly from the seat of the Cuban government at El Esperanza, where President Masó [illegible] cabinet are located. He [illegible] information as to the situation throughout the island and his views toward securing [illegible] cooperation between the entire Cuban forces and the United States troops.

Captain Stable says President Masó and cabinet are strongly located at El Esperanza, in the province of Puerto Principe. They have temporary quarters and have maintained themselves successfully against the frequent attacks by Spanish troops.

Captain Stable reports for the first time the details of a hot engagement [illegible] lasting through June 3, 4 and 5. The Spaniards numbered 1,000, while the Cubans' defense was maintained by only 800. Notwithstanding the discrepancy, the Cuban loss was only 17 killed and wounded, while the Spaniards left 20 killed on the field, indicating that their entire loss in killed and wounded was much greater. The Spaniards captured two Cuban officers, a surgeon and a second lieutenant.

Captain Stable says the officers were subjected to the most [illegible]. One of them was [illegible] by the Spanish commander [illegible] tion, and at a given signal was blown to atoms. The Spanish commander then called for a volunteer to [illegible] the remaining officer. The [illegible] of them was a bayonet thrust through the [illegible] the prisoner from one side to the other, penetrating the windpipe. A Spanish volunteer stepped forward and the Cuban officer was then subjected to the torture of a slow death following the infliction of the "degolla."

Excepting these brutal tragedies the Spanish effort on El Esperanza was futile and the Spanish forces finally retired.

Captain Stable was accompanied in his visit to the War Department by Señor Quesada, secretary of the Cuban legation. It is probable that Captain Stable will remain [illegible] when the Army [illegible] to the scene of [illegible].

WASHINGTON, July 2.—A second edition of the [illegible] published on the ship New York off Santiago has just reached the Navy Department. A large part of this publication is made up of a letter written by [illegible] at Guantanamo, addressed to the Spanish military commander at [illegible], which was captured by the Cubans [illegible]. The letter gives a description from the Spanish point of view of the attack by the American fleet on Playa del Este and on the fort on the entrance to Guantanamo bay. The writer said that at Playa del Este had only two muzzle-loading guns and no entrenchments. The detachment could do nothing before the ships firing on them. [illegible] the soldiers were ordered to retire. The writer speaks of the [illegible] [illegible] among the Spaniards and everyone [illegible] with the American squadron [illegible] at the other day.

The Newports administered [illegible] coat of whitewash to [illegible] at Freebody Park yesterday [illegible] about 400 spectators [illegible] [illegible] coat on the Brocktons. The game was from first to last a [illegible] the Newports starting the [illegible] pitched, and the crowd [illegible] good style. After [illegible] [illegible] the Brocktons, while the home [illegible] were [illegible] Moynihan's [illegible] the outfield the visitors [illegible] and finally [illegible] to a game [illegible] to get one run. [illegible] however.

Gammon's [illegible] that the [illegible] kept [illegible] [illegible] the plate [illegible] way and the safe ones were few and far between. It was an excellent exhibition of accurate work and was appreciated. He received fine support, only one error marring the Newports' record, and that was excusable. At the bat the locals did some good batting, Bransfield especially distinguishing himself in this respect.

The umpiring was not equal to the game. Toby Lyons's work at first was all in favor of the visitors, who were on [illegible] Gilbert especially [illegible] two decisions. The climax was reached in the fourth, when Gochnaur dropped Finney's throw off Bransfield and Lyons called Gochnaur out. There was an argument, during which Pickett stole home. The umpire finally decided that Gochnaur was safe, and then the Brocktons wanted Pickett sent back to third. It was a rather messy [illegible], but the umpire had been such that they expected [illegible]. They did not [illegible] when the game was over the crowd [illegible] "Toby" [illegible] at the [illegible]. It was bad enough to have decided a [illegible] game in favor of the visitors. There was, however, nothing else in yesterday's game except runs for the visitors. Newport should have had several more. The score:

Notes.

It was [illegible] after the game [illegible] [illegible] yesterday [illegible] Worcester [illegible] ought to draw bigger crowds [illegible] They ought. The playing of the team has been good, and [illegible] better patronage. But it [illegible] people to go when they don't know the [illegible] game.

The Worcester team, which made its first appearance in the New England league yesterday, is made up of several well known players, including Coogan, Conlon and Noblit, who have played in the Providence club of the Eastern League, and Day, Schultz, Weyhing and Glenn formerly of the New Bedfords. It ought to make a good showing against the other New England clubs.

The Boston Globe says: "Pitcher Todd of the Pawtuckets is a left-hander with speed and splendid control. Two league clubs are now after him. Pawtucket [illegible] and to want $1200 for the player. He has not been hit hard this season, and has found the heavy New England teams [illegible]."

"That was [illegible] [illegible] Brockton this afternoon between Fall River and the home team. The leaders have been getting some good [illegible] of late and been made [illegible] for championship [illegible] [illegible] will take and keep playing to win the New England flag this year, and are [illegible] making a harder play for it than Fall River."—Boston Herald.

YESTERDAY'S BATTLE.

A Glorious Victory, But Dearly Purchased.

Spanish Driven Back, But Americans Suffer Severely.

NEW YORK, July 2. The Evening World prints the following account of the battle yesterday about Santiago:

El Paso, Cuba, near Santiago, noon, July 1. The first artillery fight of the campaign has just been ended by the silencing of a Spanish battery.

General Lawton's division bivouacked near El Caney last night without fires.

At 7 o'clock this morning there was a sullen "Boom." It was the first shot from Capron's battery. Promptly the Spanish began to answer the challenge from their forts and trenches.

At 7:15 Grimes's battery opened on the Spanish troops to the right of the San Juan blockhouse. The shells burst like clockwork. The common powder used by our troops smoked, and was a fine target for the Spanish field battery, which probably was served by Admiral Cervera's marines, judging by the accuracy of the aim.

While our smoke gave the enemy our range, Grimes could not locate the enemy's guns, which used smokeless powder, except approximately. But, satisfied as to the Spanish position, our men worked like mad.

The Spanish fire gradually slackened, and in less than an hour it ceased altogether. Battery A of the Second artillery deserves great credit for the victory, for it was a case of blindness against sight.

The battery's loss, the officers state, was as follows:

Killed: Privates Underwood and Helm.

Wounded: Heary, George C., first sergeant; Veite, sergeant; Cornford, sergeant; Keene, corporal.

The battery was supported by the Rough Riders, about 100 Cubans with a Hotchkiss gun, a detachment of the Tenth cavalry and a squad from Company C of the Second cavalry.

Most of the Spanish shells flew low over the crest of the batteries' position and exploded. The Rough Riders had about ten wounded men, among them R. Champlain, whose left elbow was smashed.

The Cuban leader, Gonzales, reports that the Cubans lost twenty, killed and wounded.

The details of General Lawton's losses have not arrived.

Heavy volley firing has been heard for three hours. It seems to indicate a strong American advance.

There is no artillery firing from El Caney, and only scattering shots come from San Juan, which has a slope of fifteen feet in the hundred.

Both divisions really are in battle.

The day is clear and a moderate breeze is blowing, but there is a strong heat. The troops are in good condition. Captain Grimes and Corporal McLean, who were overcome by the heat, are recovering.

The battery shot one hundred rounds, two-thirds shell and the balance shrapnel.

The military balloon used by the signal corps for the purpose of obtaining accurate information of the location of the enemy and the character of their defenses proved of inestimable service in yesterday's engagement. The balloon was easily guided along three miles of the road toward the lines of the enemy.

Whenever it halted for the purpose of taking a photograph of the fortifications below, the Spaniards seized the occasion for taking pot shots at the mid-air monster. At one time the big balloon hung over San Juan not over five hundred yards from the enemy, and for five minutes the Spaniards below tried in vain to puncture the air bag.

In the fighting at San Juan a Spanish shell two and a half inches in diameter burst in the midst of Captain Puriter's battery in the First artillery, wounding several.

Among those injured was Private Samuel Barr.

Roosevelt's Rough Riders were also in this fight and deserve as much credit as in last Friday's fight in the bush.

Several of the Rough Riders were wounded, among them the following: Devore, S. G., sergeant, Troop K; Armstrong, W. A., corporal, Troop J; McSparron, corporal, Troop G; Ash, Alvin C., private, Troop G; Freeman, W., private, Troop K; Mitchell, Mason, private, Troop K.

Horton, V. D., corporal, Troop L, Third United States cavalry, was also wounded.

Another story says: San Juan Heights have fallen, and the way is now open for an advance on Morro Castle. It was a glorious victory, but very dearly purchased. The place was the strongest Spanish outpost, well fortified and valiantly defended. The position was an excellent one. San Juan hill is steep and an artillery battery was located upon it. It was also occupied by a barracks and other buildings. But the American troops stormed the heights, and Spanish valor had to yield to the bulldog tenacity and courage of the Anglo Saxon.

As I write our troops are swarming up the hill and covering it like ants. The Spaniards have fled, demoralized. The fighting has been of the hardest kind, and our troops have suffered severely; but the enemy's works are in their hands and they do not count the cost.

El Caney is also ours. The general advance, which began at 3 p. m., has been successful all along the line. After driving the enemy out of El Caney the troops took possession of the village and destroyed the Spanish fort by which it had been defended. The Spaniards fled into the city of Santiago, where they are now.

The losses on both sides were heavy.

General Kent, who is in command of the troops that captured San Juan, is elated by the splendid victory.

A Providence Pension.

FASHION'S ECCENTRICITIES.

Baby Ribbon and Its Manifold and Artistic Uses.

BERLIN, June 23. Each year fickle Fashion shows despotic favoritism to some particular style of garment, or some eccentric toilet accessory, some particular fit of bodice or hang of skirt, some peculiarity of trimming, which she holds up to her admiring imitators for a brief time and casts into most obscure oblivion afterwards. Just at present it is the narrow baby ribbon which must trim everything that is fashionable. Baby ribbon is made use of on all materials, for all occasions. It is found on lawns and linens, silks and woolens, laces and velvets, and it certainly deserves a long-lived prominence, for it is as dainty as it is practical.

A pretty illustration of this garniture is shown here in a fashionable promenade gown of silver grey Venetian cloth. The skirt shows the long pointed, tight fitting yoke, with very full serpentine flounce lined with white taffeta. A narrow piping of darker grey velvet edges the skirt yoke.

FASHIONABLE PROMENADE COSTUME.

The graceful bodice has loose folds in front, overlapped by revers of heavy yellow guipure lace, the design outlined by gathered white baby ribbon. These lace revers, which expose in front a tucked vest of white taffeta, finish at the back in a wide sailor collar, falling over a larger collar of darker grey mirror velvet, elaborately edged and embroidered with crimped baby ribbon and steel beads. The velvet collar forms caps over the shoulders, and ends in slender points on either side of the front of the bodice.

A full serpentine basque of grey velvet, embroidered and edged with baby ribbon, like the sailor collar, is attached over the hips under an applique of yellow guipure and finishes with long points over the skirt at front and back.

The tight sleeve of Venetian cloth, with its small shoulder puff, finishes at the wrist with a cuff of the same dark grey velvet with baby ribbon and steel bead embroidery.

Nor does this trimming with baby ribbon confine itself to outdoor wear. Even the silk underskirt shows this attractive garniture. As illustrated, it is of pink rose-colored taffeta, bell shaped and goreless, except for the bias seam at the back. A wide serpentine flounce adds to the fullness below, and is attached to the skirt under a narrow ruching of white and black pinked taffeta. The flounce is trimmed in zigzag design with heavy black silk lace, edged with black crimped baby ribbon, and the hem is stiffened by two narrow, full ruches of white taffeta and one of black.

Each succeeding year adds variety and extravagance to the department of fashionable lingerie, and all the novelties in the garments of this season are distinguished for their dainty fineness and beautiful finish.

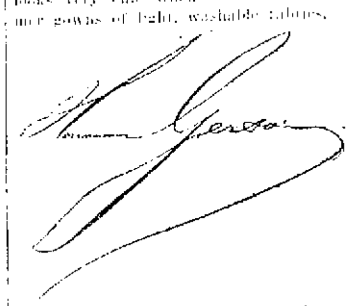

Hand-made underwear of fine nainsook, expensively but not elaborately trimmed with embroidery or lace, is greatly desired by women of refined taste and abundant means, but the average woman cannot please her taste for this kind of elegance, and the machine-made garments have to satisfy her. Fortunately, they do not lack either fineness or daintiness, since they are made of the same soft cambrics, lawns or mulls as the handsome pieces, and are trimmed with the same laces. Point de Paris is a favorite and well-wearing lace, and the fashion used this season is extremely fine.

Pongee has lately been revived for underwear, and with a purpose, as nothing is cooler for hot-weather use, and nothing will resist the merciless efforts of the laundress as well as this light, washable silk. It is trimmed with white or butter-colored laces and insertions, through which ribbon is drawn.

The prediction that longer coats are to come has not yet been realized. On the contrary, the newest designs for jackets to be worn when chilly evening zephyrs forewarn the summer girl that her season is at an end, are as short and close-fitting. Eton coats are recommended by the tailors as one of the most desirable styles for the coming season. There are double and single-breasted Etons and Eton coats turned back at fancy, double revers, which do not meet or fasten in front at all. The plain, short-fitting fly front coat, with small revers coming back just enough to show the necktie and fasten below, is shown as one of the styles which never die out.

Strapped seams are again in evidence, the illustration showing a very natty model of tan broadcloth, lined with fancy colored taffeta. It is cut very short and the straps form the only trimming. The white sailor hat has a round fold of straw at the rim, and the trimming consists of a band of folded velvet ribbon and high standing, shaded tan and brown quills.

The same model has been satisfactorily copied in red broadcloth, and looks very chic when worn over summer gowns of light, washable fabrics.

HERRMANN GERSON (Berlin.)

Next week's article will be contributed by Hirsch & Co. of Brussels, whose fame as a novel dressmaker is well known. Messieurs Hirsch & Co. will picture and describe a most beautiful and artistic street gown.

THE PREPARATIONS FOR A JOURNALIST'S CAREER.

A very prominent journalist has expressed the opinion that no training is possible or useful for the beginner. I should reverse that, and say that there is no training, no acquisition, no form of knowledge or experience, which is not useful both to the beginner in journalism and to the lifelong practitioner. If it had not been denied, I should have thought that a commonplace. The eminent journalist no doubt really meant his opinion to be taken seriously. He meant that journalism, as now practiced, for some very conspicuous instances, had no use for history, or for political economy, or for a knowledge of the laws and constitutions under which we live, or for any form of culture. [illegible] Lord Beaconsfield [illegible] "Oh, a very learned man indeed!" "Then," said the great Parliamentarian, "he had better go somewhere else. We have no use for that sort of thing here." Parliament and journalism, said Matthew Arnold, are the two most effective means of [illegible] —George W. Smalley, in Harper for July.

SHAM BATTLE BY THE FORTY-SEVENTH.

The Forty-seventh regiment had a good sham battle yesterday in the vicinity of Rocky Farm. About 8:30 the second battalion under Major Bartlemus marched from camp over the Ocean drive to near Price's neck, where, on the rising ground with plenty of rock shelter for natural breastworks, they awaited the attack of the enemy. The First battalion, under Major Quick, and two companies of the Third under Major Lyon, These left camp shortly after 9 o'clock and about 10 appeared off the defences of the Second battalion in a difficult position. A small stream covered their front while the open ground about offered no shelter to the attacking party which was under fire as soon as it began to deploy for the attack.

Advantage was taken of whatever shelter could be found, and the attack was begun with vigor, being opposed just as vigorously. The advantage of the position of the Second battalion was greater than the advantage of numbers of the attack and they could not be dislodged. The manoeuvres were very satisfactory. There were no casualties and the men acted like soldiers.
